

Chapter 15

1. What was Freud's view of human personality and its development and dynamics? Which of Freud's ideas did his followers accept and which did they reject and how do Freud's ideas hold up today?
2. What are projective tests, and what do psychoanalytic clinicians hope to learn from them?
3. What did humanistic psychologists view as the central feature of personality? How has the humanistic perspective on personality influenced psychology and what are the criticisms of the humanistic view?
4. How do psychologists use traits to describe personality and what are the strengths and weaknesses of trait-assessment tools? What traits seem to provide the most useful information about personality variation and are traits consistent over time and across situations?
5. In the view of social-cognitive psychologists, what mutual influences shape an individual's personality?