

Colorology

Colorology can also be called the study of hues, or chromatology, or other names. It's the study of how peoples' personalities are reflected from their favorite color. After reading about colors below, write a summary about Colorology and how you feel your favorite colors reflect your personality.

Red: You are outgoing, spirited, competitive, emotional, impulsive, and sometimes fickle. You enjoy a strong desire for sport, action, and excitement. Your moods swing from high to low and back again. You have a strong mind, vital ideas, and a stout heart.

Pink: You are a delicate red, very feminine. You are secure, charming, warm, and gracious. Like red, pink likes life. Those who dislike pink usually dislike femininity.

Yellow: You are intelligent, stubborn, imaginative, idealistic, and creative. You are a philosopher and are able to master problems. You know how to control your temper. You are a natural organizer and reformer. Although you are inclined to be standoffish, you can make lasting friendships and get along best with other yellow lovers.

Green: You are social, active in community affairs, a loyal friend, kind and generous, and often have a big appetite for food. You are a good neighbor and a good citizen. You like to make rules and follow them. Greens are the salt of the earth and are sincere, wholesome, and never forget a friend. Greens also tend to lack the power of concentration, lack aggressiveness, and are inclined to be modest.

Blue: You are conservative, diligent, patient, trusting, and need to be trusted, vulnerable, even-tempered and reliable. Blues are good students, display sound judgment, and a sense of responsibility. Blues accomplish the most out of life and make good providers, executives, and planners.

Purple: You are artistically inclined, sophisticated, often generous, charming, and witty. Intellectual, less worldly than other colors, and easy to live with are descriptions of purple. A purple person is usually well satisfied with himself. You possess a true sense of values and have considerable charm, but your acquaintances will have a better opinion of you than your family or close friends.

Orange: Orange is everybody's friend/ Nine out of ten are cheerleaders. You are peppy, fickle, enthusiastic, good natured, adventurous, fun loving, and have a strong determination. You are well liked by people and should consider a career in selling.

Brown: You are practical, down to earth, sober, reliable, good money managers, and have a strong need for security and a sense of belonging. Purchases you make are usually made on the basis of quality rather than class. You are not impulsive and tend to be critical of others. Browns are tight with money and can be trusted to handle other people's money and they won't try to put anything over on you.

Black: You are conservative, serious, conventional or worldly, sophisticated, dignified and person security and prestige re important to you. You like to impress people and usually have two personalities private ad public.

White: You are neat, immaculate, self-sufficient, a cautious buyer, a shrewd trader, fussy, an often critical. You are often very frank and are willing to accept things for what they are.